It is a grand tribute to the present civilization and, though many of our friends think the republic is in danger, I am one of those who believe that when the people of this nation, the great mass of wealth producers, have come up to that high standard of changing this system of government by the ballot that this nation is then saved or will be saved by this means and we can certainly congratulate ourselves. The first actual business was the reading by Chairman Branch of the resolutions committee of a supplement to the platform. The immigration plank and anti-Pinkerton plank were loudly cheered. When the first paragraph, that relating to the elections bill and the Austral-applause and Temporary Chairman Ellington at once introduced his successor.

It was a picturesque spectacle when Permanent Chairman Loucks standing firmly on his one leg and swinging a crutch at arm's length waved the great assemblage to order. His speech as it progressed was a surprise to a majority of the convention, but its impetuosity and fire if not its hints for and against get a hearing. They protested against

At last the moment had arrived when all was ready and the roll of states was enlled for the presentation of candidates for the presidency. The first state. Alabama, arose and promptly placed in nomination a man, "the mention of whose name creates such enthusiasm as was never heard in our state. He is an old war horse, but I say he is good for a thousand campaigns yet to come."

"Who is he?" shouted a voice.

"Gen. James B. Weaver, of Iowa."
